The Shapeshifter Chronicles (The Future Chronicles)

Synopsis

Shapeshifters. Beings with the ability to change their physical form or manifestation. From legendary humans who transform under the light of a full moon, to the horrific mimicry of The Thing, to the mimetic metal of a T-1000 Terminator, such embody the mystery of the unknown. In this volume of the acclaimed Future Chronicles anthology series, eleven authors weave stories around such entities - both fantastical and technological - exploring our fascination with the shapeshifter. The Shapeshifter Chronicles features stories by Hugo and Nebula Award winner Ken Liu, Aurora Award winner Julie E. Czerneda, USA Today bestselling authors Anthea Sharp and Alexia Purdy, plus seven more of today's most visionary authors in fantasy and speculative fiction.

What would it be like if we had more than just one form our bodies could take? To escape our bipedal shape and change into something else, the idea itself is liberating and limitless. This anthology boldly explores that theme, from changing your form to that of another human or an animal, to aliens on missions learning about humanity and gaining life experience. There are even artificially intelligent robots with surprising motivations and living embodiments of evil(!) With an introduction by anthology producer Samuel Peralta that enraptures you with its poetic prose about desire and change, there are eleven short stories here that expand on this anthology's theme in diverse and creative ways, starting with: Wendy Hammer's "Rock, Paper, Scissors" • "On a secret mission, a shapeshifter is embedded with a family for many years, enjoying the closeness it gives her, even as she hides her painful and startling secret from them. But when a malevolent force does the unthinkable, what will she do to rectify the problem? A riveting and powerful story of one woman's journey motivated by love and revenge while exploring the depths of her humanity that becomes more intense with each page turn. Anthea Sharp's "Waterborne" • "In the ninth century, Brea is a social outcast living with her father, a fisherman harboring the secret of her mother's identity. Brea's curiosity grows until she becomes a young woman, causing deep tension in their family with her incessant questions. But when tragedy strikes, what will she do to survive? A touching story of empowerment and how difficult it can be to embrace your true self when you don't know your own past.
